

Towards the end of 1945, military servicemen were encouraged to take up all kinds of sport whilst awaiting their discharge from the army. The original members of the club were servicemen of the Australian Electrical and Mechanical engineers, stationed at Bulimba workshops, Brisbane. Permission was granted to them by the Surf Life Saving Association to start a club at what is now known as Mermaid Beach AEME SLSC. The name Mermaid Beach AEME SLSC was gazetted on 11th September, 1946. Prior to the naming of Mermaid Beach AEME SLSC the club was known as the A.E.M.E. Surf Life Saving Club.

Until such time as a fibro shack was built at the end of Ocean Street, all members were housed at Ben Stoyles home in Venice Street.

The first clubhouse was constructed of fibro and contained one room with 12 bunks. As membership increased, an adjoining kitchen and bunkroom were added to the back of the shack. All water was supplied by a hand pump and conditions were primitive. In 1948 an order for a surf boat was placed with Mr Norman Wright, boat builder of Bulimba, Brisbane. The cost was 265 pounds ($530.00), plus equipment. Delivery of the boat took place in November 1948 and it was named "Ilma Mary".

Towards the end of 1951 construction was commenced on a new clubhouse in Hedges Avenue, on the present site. This clubhouse was opened on 3rd May, 1952. This clubhouse had a large upstairs dance floor and was used for fund raising.

In 1972, clubhouse No 2 was demolished and construction began on clubhouse No. 3, which was officially opened on 25th February 1973, which is the clubhouse we now have, with several renovations and additions having been made over the years to achieve the standard we now have.

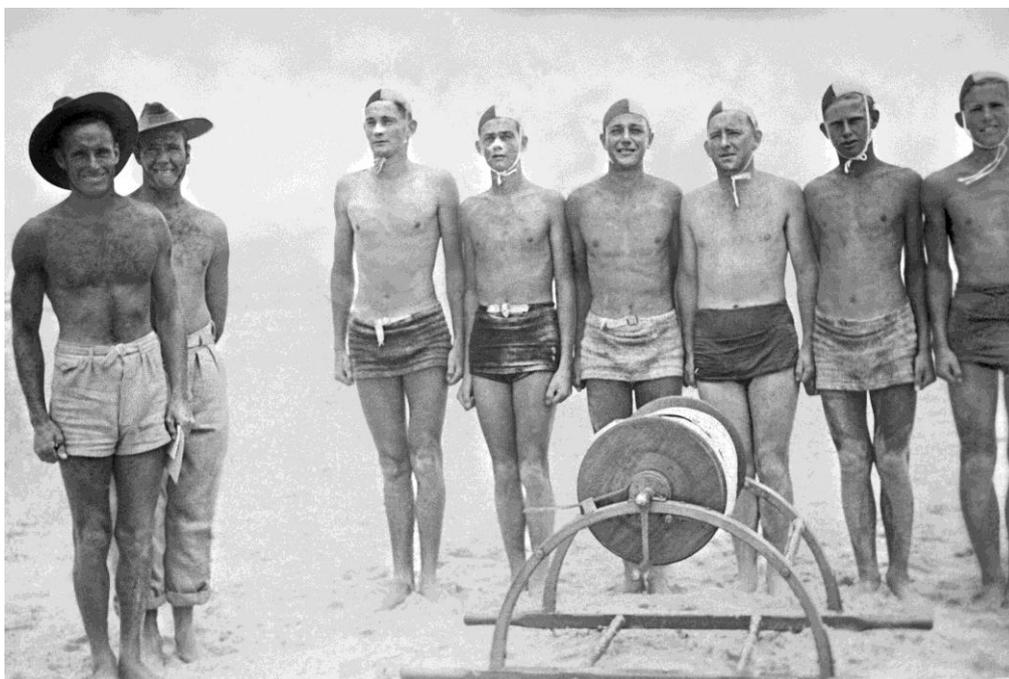

Nippers were first introduced to Mermaid Beach in October 1977.
